Eden Welcomes Russia As Ally against Germany

GERMANS REPORT FIERCE FIGHTING

Hitler Tells of Great Successes on the Third Day of Nazi-Russo War

Reports from Headquarters Assert Hundreds of Russians Killed and Thousands Captured; Center of Red Line Is Punctured, Nazis Declare; Say One Division Destroyed

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, June 24 — Extremely heavy fighting north of Brest Litovsk was indicated today and German reports from Hitler's headquarters in the east told of "great successes" including the shattering of a line of Russian bunkers in the third day of the German-Russian war.

The fierce fighting apparently was between Brest Litovsk, which the Germans captured yesterday, and the East Prussian frontier and Pripiet swamps. This region, with a base about 100 miles long, bulges into East Prussia from German-occupied Poland.

Here four Russian armies stood on the first day of the German attack Sunday, according to a report to the German high command. The armies included, the report said, forty-nine infantry divisions, many of them motorized, three tank divisions, twelve armored brigades and seven cavalry divisions.

These forces could be supported by 2,000 Soviet planes based north of the Pripiet swamps.

Behind the hot, dust-clouded battlefront Stukas dived in screaming attack at Russian columns, and war reporters who rode in them declared "the effect is terrible. . . there is nothing but confusion beneath us."

Strong Lines Pierced

The official German news agency, DNB, reported the piercing of a strong line of Soviet bunkers in the middle of the front. It also said "several hundred were killed and several thousand Russian prisoners have been taken" in brief fighting at close quarters in an unspecified location.

DNB reported also that German units had "destroyed" one Russian division. (A division normally has 15,000 men.)

LONDON, Wednesday, June 25 (AP) — RAF bombers streaked out of a clear starlit sky above Dover strait early today and blasted Calais and Boulogne again on the fourteenth night of Britain's accelerated air offensive.

Union Threatens Shutdown in Coal Field of Southern Operators Mines

Decision Is Reached after Two-hour Conference Fails To Bring New Wage Agreement

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP) — John L. Lewis's United Mine Workers Union today called for a stoppage of all production in southern Appalachian coal mines on and after July 8 unless by that time the Southern Soft Coal operators sign a new two-year agreement with the union.

The Union's Policy Committee voted this action after a conference of union and operator negotiators failed to reach a unanimous agreement. Lewis said at a press conference later that twelve of the thirteen Operator Associations comprising the Southern Producers Wage conference had "acquiesced" in the contract. He added that the one which did not acquiesce was the Harlan County (Ky.) Coal Operators' Association.

Is "Cooling Off Period"

The UMW chief said he hoped that time between now and the July 8 deadline would serve as "a cooling off period" for the Harlan operators. It would, he added, give northern and southern owners of mines in the Harlan area time "to exercise a little influence." The same, he said, applied to banks and railroads which had "important interests" in Harlan coal fields.

The stand of the Harlan operators balked the union's effort to sign up the thirteen Operator Associations as a conference, but around union headquarters the belief prevailed that the organized miners and the operators would be on contract terms without a shutdown.

Lewis explained from the shutdown order the so-called captive mines in the southern field which are owned by the steel companies and supply such companies with vitally needed fuel for national defense production.

The UMW leader told newsmen that steel company supplies from the captive mines were low—probably three to five days' supply on hand—and that the owner companies were willing to accept the contract as soon as the commercial operators had signed it.

Is Same Agreement

The contract offered the southern producers for their signature, Lewis said, was the same agreement signed by the north last week, plus three memoranda relating to such controversial items as the "rejects clause," the so-called protective wage clause, and tonnage conveyer rates.

The rejects clause under which operators in the past have excluded certain coal for impurities before computing tonnage pay, is scheduled to be eliminated from the contract, but with the understanding that individual operators faced with a financial loss might take steps within ninety days of contract signing for a reexamination of their situation under the machinery for settling disputes.

Hormones Yield Clues to Cause Of Heart Disease

Adrenalin Seems Main Offender, Scientists Told in Report

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

DURHAM, N. H., June 24 (AP) — A new clue to the cause of heart disease, found in three of man's commonest hormones, was reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science today by Dr. William Raab, of the University of Vermont college of medicine.

This clue offers possibilities for learning how to prevent some of the serious heart disorders.

Evidence that many people with bad hearts live to ripe old ages, contrary to common belief, was presented in another report made by Dr. Louis Faurens Bishop, Bellevue hospital, New York City. He cited cases even of the much dreaded coronary thrombosis living for many years and doing useful work.

The heart-disease hormones are two from the adrenal glands and one from the thyroid.

Adrenalin Main Offender

The main offender appears to be adrenalin, which is commonly known as the energy hormone, the stuff that spreads quickly through the body in a freight. Along with (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Troops Withdraw From Plane Plant

Army Remains in Charge of North American Aviation Factory

LOS ANGELES, June 24 (AP) — Fifteen days after they moved in, pushing CIO pickets aside, troops were withdrawn today from the big North American Aviation plant here.

Lieut. Col. Charles E. Branchaw, who directed the army's restoration of production on a $196,000,000 in orders for the United States and Great Britain, remains in charge, however.

The 1,500 troops, composed chiefly of the Fifteenth Infantry from Ft. Lewis, Wash., moved to bivouac quarters on nearby airport. There was no indication when they would leave the area.

Some 4,000 troops were involved June 9 in the initial maneuver which followed a five-day strike by a United Automobile Workers local. About 2,500 soldiers since have been withdrawn.

Britain Prepares Mission To Moscow, Two Nations Overlook All Differences

Russia Accepts England's Offer To Send Military and Economic Delegations To Combine Efforts

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, June 24 — Great Britain and the Soviet Union have agreed to fight Germany together as military and economic partners. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden informed the House of Commons today, and the government announced tonight that preparations to send a mission to Russia "are being pressed forward as quickly as possible." These plans are expected to be completed shortly.

Sir Stafford Cripps, British Ambassador who returned home from the Soviet Union June 11, "hopes to be able to return to Moscow in a few days' time," the foreign office announced. He is occupied in London "with further consultations and discussions."

Great Britain and Russia in becoming partners are overlooking the difference in their respective political systems in order to defeat their common enemy, Adolf Hitler, Eden said.

He also disclosed that Turkey had "made it plain in the last twenty-four hours that the anglo-Turkish treaty (for mutual aid) stands intact — that it stands first and foremost in her engagements," despite the new non-aggression accord signed between Turkey and Germany last Wednesday.

Recommends Welles Address

As for the attitude of the United States toward Britain's collaboration with Communist Russia, Eden suggested that "the declaration by Mr. Sumner Welles in the press this morning" should be read. This was the statement in which the American Acting Secretary of State asserted that "any defense against Hitlerism" would benefit the security of the United States.

Declaring that although he was not yet able "to reveal the full results of the conversations," Eden said that Moscow had "accepted our offer to send military and economic missions to Russia to coordinate our efforts in what is beyond doubt our common task — the defeat of Germany."

"The Soviet government," he said, "have made it plain to us that in the period of military collaboration which now lies ahead, help will be on a mutual and reciprocal basis. His majesty's government accept and endorse that view."

Government Fails To Secure Men To Reopen Shipyards

Civil Service Registration Doesn't Begin To Fill 1,700 Vacancies

SAN FRANCISCO, June 24 (AP) — The Government sought in vain today for substantial numbers of machinists to man the complex lathes, drill presses and other power tools with which ships are built.

AFL and CIO machinists, on strike since May 10 in eleven yards, area ship building and repair yards, disregarded a navy request, that they return to work on $500,000,000 worth of defense orders pending negotiations.

The navy set up registration desks to enlist all possible machinists under Federal Civil Service and thus fill the jobs of the 1,700 strikers.

But the results did not begin to fill the needs. Possibly sixty men applied at the vast Bethlehem shipbuilding plant, which normally hires 900 machinists. Of these only nine had been accepted under Civil Service up to mid-afternoon. About twenty applied at the Moore drydock on the East bay.

Union To Meet Tomorrow

Most of those who applied for Civil Service rating said they were non-union men; union officials said all were.

Meanwhile, the unions prepared to meet tomorrow night to reopen all issues of the strike to discussion. The fact that since their last meeting the big Bethlehem company had agreed to sign a closed shop contract was expected to have a powerful influence in halting the strike. The machinists, receiving $1 an hour and double time for overtime, had demanded $1.15 and retention on double time. The shipyards offered $1.12 and time and a half.

James Smith, business agent for the CIO machinists, insisted the government was using Civil Service "as a strike breaking agency." Rear Admiral J. W. Greenlaid, twelfth Naval District commandant, said "we're just working on the question of national defense. All we want to do is get the men back to work."

Roosevelt Frees "Frozen" Russian Assets; Promises All Aid to Soviet

Chief Executive Has No Idea What Materials U.S.S.R. Needs; List of Items Not Submitted

By J. C. STARK

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP) — Carrying forward the policy of favoring Russia against Germany, President Roosevelt promised all possible American help for the Soviets today and released "frozen" Russian assets to permit the purchase of needed materials in the United States.

The president told his press conference that Russia had not yet submitted any list of items needed by the Red forces to hold back the German onslaught and until such a request came, he did not have the foggiest idea of what the United States would supply.

He said also that he did not know whether aid would be given under the lease-lend act or through Russian purchases and he declined to answer a direct question whether he deemed the defense of Russia essential to the defense of the United States.

But the president made it clear that aid to Russia would be limited only by the productive capacity of American industry and the prior defense requirements of the United States and Great Britain.

Maryland Police Told of Sabotures Warned To Be Doubly on the Alert by Judge Collins

OCEAN CITY, Md., June 24 (AP) — Circuit Judge Stephen Collins of Chestertown, Md., warned Maryland police to be doubly on the alert against "forces of sabotage working to undermine the commercial life of the country."

Speaking at the opening meeting of the three-day Maryland Police Association convention, Judge Collins declared:

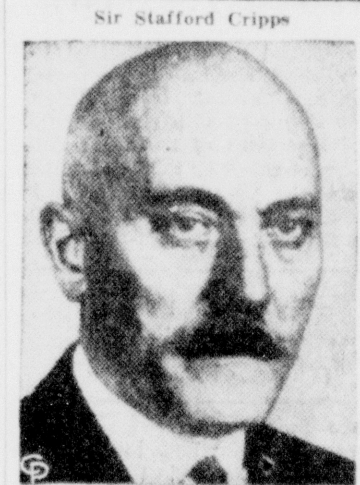

"We are all confident that these agencies will do everything in their power to cooperate with the military forces in preserving this country from those who are endeavoring to destroy our government by bombing from within with insidious and devastating sabotage."

He praised recent legislation giving judges discretion in issuing habeas corpus writs and emphasized the absolute necessity in these times of continued compliance with statutes requiring search warrants.

The 300 delegates from Maryland and the District of Columbia were welcomed by Mayor Clifford Cripps of Ocean City. They included representatives of state, city and county police, federal law enforcement agencies and industrial police. Association President Hanson Hooper, chief constable of the Baltimore Police Court will speak at the association luncheon tomorrow.

ENVOYS IN NEWS

Two envoys to Russia figure prominently in the news as the latest phase of the European war develops — the Russo-German conflict. Sir Stafford Cripps, top British ambassador to Russia, returns to Moscow to direct Russo-British co-operation. It was Count Friedrich von der Schulenberg who notified Russian officials of Germany's determination to wage war against the Soviet government.

British Increase Tempo of Attack On Syrian Front

Operations Cover Widest Range of Territory yet under Assault

CAIRO, Egypt, June 24 (AP) — British and free French forces advanced on several fronts in Syria today, using land, sea and air forces in an effort to complete the occupation and consolidate the near eastern situation while the Germans are busy with Russia.

The operations covered the widest range of territory yet reported under attack, extending inland to the desert town of Palmyra north to Homs and South into the Jebel Ed Rruz country as well as along the coast and in the Damascus area.

Making immediate use of authority to take whatever measures he deemed necessary, Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, the British commander, redoubled the strength of his attacks and used his aviation lavishly.

MOSCOW, Wednesday, June 25 — Meeting the German onslaught with "stiff resistance," Russia officially declared early today her armies had "annihilated a Nazi mechanized regiment and her bombs had started huge fires in Warsaw, Constanta and other German-occupied cities."

Claiming great damage to military objectives, the Red army reported gasoline dumps were burning in Warsaw and the Rumanian city of Constanta is "ablaze" after three bombings by Soviet warplanes.

The war report revealed that the Germans had brought their world-famous parachute troops into play in the all-out assault on the Russian lands.

The Red army charged they wore Soviet uniforms.

NAZIS USE PARACHUTES

"The Germans are dropping parachutists for the interruption of communications in batches of five or ten clad in the uniform of Soviet militiamen," the communique declared.

"Units for the destruction of these parachutists have been created behind the front line. The NKVD (Russian secret police) is entrusted with the direction of the operations of these units."

On the far-flung battle line, the Russians declared the German offensive in the Siauliai area in old Lithuania had been repelled with heavy losses to the Nazis; fierce fighting is in progress in defense of Grodno, Poland, and Vilna (Vilnius), and Kaunas, Lithuania.

Large tank formations are battling in the Brodsk area.

Demonstrations Against Moscow Staged in Spain

Falangists Shout "Death to Communism -- Death to Soviet Russia"

MADRID, Wednesday, June 25 (AP)—In the wake of demonstrations in Spanish cities approving the Axis attack on Russia, the Spanish government declared early today it was studying "very carefully and fully the new phase" in the European war caused by the German-Russian conflict.

More than 10,000 demonstrators, led by uniformed Falangists, appeared in Madrid yesterday shouting "on to Moscow" and assembled outside the German embassy to applaud the Axis.

Similar demonstrations were held in Albacete, Barcelona and Valencia. In Barcelona, German officials appeared on the balcony of the consulate and acknowledged the cheers.

Shout "Death to Russia"

The Madrid demonstrators wearing the blue shirts and red berets of the uniform of the state party, carried a banner saying, "Falange volunteers against Russia," and the demonstrators shouted wildly "death to Communism—Death to Soviet Russia."

The cabinet went into a new session to continue deliberations on the possibility of allowing Spanish volunteers to enlist in the war against Russia.

The demonstrators tied up traffic in the center of the city, but heavy police forces broke them up without major incident.

Ambassador Alexander W. Wedell sought an interview with Generalissimo Francisco at which he would ask clarification of Spain's position.

U. S. Embassy Guarded

The American and British embassies had special police guards because of the demonstrations.

On May 31 Spain decided to send 100,000 Spanish workers to Germany in an exchange arrangement. There have been hints that a token expeditionary force may be sent to join in the German offensive.

Serrano Suñer asserted that "extermination of Russia has been made necessary for history and the future of Europe."

"The Falange," he said, "dictates in this moment its condemnatory sentence. Russia is guilty—guilty of our civil war, guilty of the death of Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera (founder of the Falange who was executed during the civil war), and guilty of the deaths of so many of our comrades and soldiers during a war caused by Communist Russian aggression."

channel. Flashes from the exploding bombs which were believed to be of the heaviest caliber cast a glare aloft along twenty miles of the French coastline.

Germania Resist Strongly
Bursts of anti-aircraft shells showed German ground defenses were throwing up a vigorous resistance but the assault went on virtually without a break.

A few German planes were reported over the east and southwest of England. Others were off the coast. No reports of any bombs or raiders were reported from north-west England or the north midlands.

Britain declared officially last night that the "Hun" has lost more than five fighters to every British pilot in the continuing grand-scale operations over France and the Channel.

112 Planes Downed
While RAF bombers roared across the Channel to round out two weeks of nightly bombing at German industries, communications and bases, the air ministry news service declared ten offensive forays in the eight days ending Monday cost the Nazis 112 planes and the British only 26 aircraft. At that, five British pilots were reported saved.

Observers saw an indication that the Luftwaffe has sent its crack pilots to the Russian front in statements of RAF veterans who said the Nazi pilots they now encounter "seem inexperienced."

political considerations raised by the new London-Moscow collaboration. "The political systems of Great Britain and Russia are diverse," he said, "but this cannot and must not obscure the reality which confronts us today."

Cred Is Not Issue

Eden said that "we have always had the creed" of Communism but that that is not the issue today. The Russians "are fighting the man who seeks to dominate the world," he said, and added "that also is our sole task." He followed out the lead suggested by Prime Minister Winston Churchill on Sunday.

After hearing Eden, the house voted to place 1,000,000,000 pounds (about $4,000,000,000) at the disposal of the government for war purposes—an amount which Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood estimated would last about three months at the present rate of expenditure.

Sir Kingsley said that he would have to ask the House for more war money in the fall.

Eden said Britain's failure to pro-

ON THE EASTERN BATTLEFRONT

This map shows the huge new warfront, extending 1,700 miles from the Baltic to the Black Sea, along which the Nazi and Russian armies are locked in combat. The southern invasion move would give Hitler control of the Soviet "bread basket" in the Ukraine (1). Lithuania (2) which Russia had incorporated with Latvia and Estonia as a buffer against Germany, is reported to have declared its independence. No. 3 shows the Karelian Isthmus, another point of attack, possibly with Finnish aid.

Moscow had been due to Russia's animals' hearts, they invariably died of heart disease. If, on the other hand, their normal supply of the hormones was reduced by surgery, the heart muscles showed a deficiency of this energizing stuff.

Unpredictable Disease
In human beings the energy hormones were observed in various types of heart trouble. In the painful angina pectoris extra energy hormone always was found in the blood. X-rays which reduced the amount of these hormones produced by the body, sometimes abolished the heart pains, and caused other favorable changes.

Dr. Bishop told of 184 persons, aged 70 or more, with heart disease of various types. They had lived many years with bad hearts, one being over 90. He concluded that whether heart disease will kill a person is almost unpredictable.

Britain Fully Informed

Nevertheless, he said, Britain had been kept fully informed of the negotiations leading up to signing of the pact.

Former War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha, a frequent critic of the government, declared that "by vigorous action we must sustain Turkey and added that "it is urgent to take military measures to reassure her."

Informed sources indicated that the Turkish and confused diplomatic problems arising from Britain's new alignment with Russia, including the status of the three Baltic states absorbed by the Soviet Union, would be pushed into the background while Britain concentrates on fighting.

have been classified for the information filter unit to be established in Baltimore.

5,200 Volunteers Needed
Approximately 5,200 volunteer men and women will be assigned to various units over the entire state when the service is completed. Between twelve and fifteen spotters will be on duty for the continuous operation of each post.

Needed for the filter unit in Baltimore will be more than 200 volunteers who would receive information from spotters and transfer it to the air force which in turn could dispatch interceptor planes to meet the enemy aircraft.

Arrangements have been made to train inexperienced women as telephone operators. Despite numerous volunteers the council still needs more, George said.

Legion Forming Posts

It was pointed out that Young women are preferred for the posts of operators. Only men are being accepted as spotters and most of these posts are being organized by American Legion posts.

Spotters would scan the skies for enemy planes in the event of hostilities, according to the plan of operations. They would observe the type, number and direction, and immediately telephone their report to the filter unit where information would be sifted before being relayed to Philadelphia for the air force.

Hormones

The energy hormone is one from the cortex, or covering, of the adrenal glands, which seems to be present as a complication.

The thyroid hormone enters as a sort of ringmaster, which occasionally eggs on the energy hormone to do its worst.

The Vermont hotel evidence covered both humans and animals. On rats it was found that if the adrenal hormones are injected into the body, the heart muscles absorb proportionately more of the stuff than do other muscles.

Moreover too much of the adrenal hormones was absorbed into the

Army Graduates Mechanics after 90 Days Training

Will Fix Anything from Tank To a Light Pistol

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
ABERDEEN PROVING GROUNDS, Md., June 24 (AP)—An unique class of "men-behind-the-men-behind-the-guns" was graduated by the army today, fully equipped with traveling machine shops and garages to repair the guns and motors of mechanized war.

In simple ceremonies, Maj. Gen. Charles M. Wesson, army chief of ordnance, called the 1,827 officers and men "the artisan soldiers of our victory" and declared "a gun repaired in the field is equal to a gun produced in the factory."

The men from the first thirteenth ordnance companies from a new school to train mechanics and specialists into cohesive, complete units, ready to roll right onto the battlefield to fix anything from a twenty-eight-ton tank to a light pistol.

Are Trouble-Shooters

They're the ordnance soldiers, the trouble-shooters of war on wheels. Yet ninety days ago they were civilians.

Ground was broken only last January for the new unit ordnance training center conceived by Gen. Wesson. In three months draughts go through basic military training, classroom and shop instruction, and final unit or company training.

The companies' bus-like trucks, with compact bins and workbenches, include welding shops, machine shops, auto repair and gun repair shops. Their equipment runs from bolts and screws to lathes, power drills, valve grinders, hydraulic presses and measuring instruments. The trucks' drive shafts and generators operate the power tools. They're prepared to fix vehicles and weapons from railway to machine guns and plane sound detectors.

Army officers and newspapermen, bouncing along in command cars on a tour of the school at the proving grounds founded in the world war, were shown men repairing guns in the field, tanks whumping through slacks, new draughts in calisthenics and drill, men going in to gas chambers to test new masks. They visited huge auto buildings and lecture rooms, the pistol range—ordnance soldiers carry only pistols—and saw trucks bounding over dusty fields and squirming through mud.

The thirteen companies graduated today will leave Thursday for assignments in the field.

The Ninety-fifth Railway Maintenance Company will go to Sandy Hook, N. Y. The Eighty-second heavy maintenance to Benicia Arsenal, Calif., and the Eighty-first Heavy Maintenance to Fort Bliss, Tex. The Heavy Maintenance companies keep up the heavier vehicles and weapons.

Washington Woman Is Victim of Attack By Negro Robber

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—A daylight assault by a negro on a 26-year-old married woman in a dry cleaning shop was reported today to police still seeking a clue to the strangling of Jessie Elizabeth Strife, 23-year-old war department stenographer.

Police said they had received information that the negro entered the shop, on busy Fourteenth street, in mid-afternoon, pulled a pistol from his pocket, balled the woman clerk to an iron rack and gagged her, and afterwards walked out with the contents of the cash register. Deputy Coroner Robert Rosenberg said she had been raped.

Mrs. Strife was attacked ten days ago when she went to a neighborhood delicatessen in a rainstorm for a quarter pound of butter. Her nude body was found in a nearby garage next day.

LaGuardia Announces Nation-Wide Drive To Collect Aluminum

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Mayor Fiorella La Guardia, director of the office of civilian defense, announced tonight a nation-wide drive to collect old and unused aluminum.

In a broadcast address (NBC-Blue), La Guardia disclosed the office of production management had requested the defense agency to undertake the campaign on the basis of "very successful" experience in aluminum collections recently in Richmond, Va., and Madison, Wis.

Noting that it was the "first assignment to duty" given him, the New York mayor said he would ask the state governors to take direct charge of the drive, passing responsibility down to county, city and town officials, civic and patriotic organizations, and youth organizations.

LONDON, June 24 (AP)—Reuters, British News Agency, reported in a Stockholm dispatch tonight that observers on high buildings in Helsinki saw through binoculars what they described as a "sea of flame" over Tallinn, the capital of Estonia, across the Gulf of Finland.

It was presumed, Reuters said, that the city had been set ablaze by bombing.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Germany is clearly trying to deal Russia a swift knock-out blow in the vital Ukraine sector of the 2,000 mile eastern war front.

Credible if unconfirmed reports from Turkey say that the Nazis and Rumanians have advanced on three fronts in that area ranging in depth from eighty to 125 miles. Whether that means that the Red army is already crumbling or is merely engaged in a strategic retreat to absorb the initial force of the Nazi attack is not certain. Such

Russian division yesterday after breaking through enemy border positions, DNB said. "Before the German troops were able properly to station themselves for battle," said the agency, "the Russian division collapsed under German fire and was destroyed."

"Soviet tank forces standing ready were scattered by the German air force," the agency continued. "German losses were exceptionally small in this fighting."

Tonight DNB reported that the Germans destroyed 280 Russian tanks in two operations. At one unnamed point where the Germans smashed through Soviet positions after fierce fighting they destroyed 180 tanks which had sought to hold up the Nazi advance, DNB said.

Yesterday, the agency said, the German air force destroyed 100 Russian tanks in a comparatively small sector of the eastern front. "The high command reported only that operations were 'following with great success their planned course' in a communiqué issued from 'the fuhrer's headquarters.'"

Drives into Ukraine
(An Ankara dispatch quoted foreign military attaches as saying a German panzer column had driven 120 miles from Southern Poland into the Ukraine. The attack was said to be moving with astonishing speed. Another column was said to have penetrated 80 miles through Bessarabia toward Odessa.)

Meager accounts of German army reporters pieced together a picture of awesome force, heat and bloodshed. It was the old story of the western front: Planes diving on marching columns, spraying troops with machine-gun bullets and bombs; Stukas hurtling from the skies at tank formations and spreading terror and confusion; flame-throwers attacking concrete fortifications; and German motorized units driving into enemy land far beyond their support. It was the old story on a setting miles deeper and against an army millions stronger.

On the waters of the Baltic and the Black Seas too, the battle raged in midsummer temperatures. The Germans reported sinking a Soviet submarine and destroyer in the Baltic. (The British news agency Reuters from Ankara said Russian cruisers, destroyers and submarines were battling German planes off the Bulgarian coast of the Black Sea.)

Press reports from East Prussia told of Russian attempts to send bombers over German soil. German fighters engaged one Russian squadron in a brisk battle and shot down twenty planes, DNB reported. The agency said some Russian crews attempted to bail out and prisoners were taken.

One report from an unidentified point on the eastern front said German infantrymen had advanced several miles without encountering opposition. Then, in a village, Russians unexpectedly took a stand.

Fighting Is Hot
"The fighting was hot and bitter," the German news report stated. "Artillery shot down house after house, barn after barn. Clouds of smoke rose up against the clear blue summer sky. Tongues of fire licked out and destroyed buildings. The war in the east for the first time showed its fiery face."

Another German war reporter gave this picture of a dive-bombing attack on a Russian column of tanks and horse-drawn cannon. "Three or four tanks have been hurled to the side. Between them horses are running, are racing with their carts cross country, are spilling them, are falling prostrate. Scared, anguished faces are turned up toward us. After that there's nothing but confusion underneath us."

Diplomatic activity kept pace with the fighting. Bulgaria agreed to take over representation of German interests in Moscow, thus indicating she intends to remain neutral. Slovakia declared war on Russia and sent her troops into action. Hungary broke off relations with Russia. Lithuanian insurgents announced over the Kaunas radio that independent Lithuania was ready to assist in building the new order in Europe. Kaunas was said to be in insurgent hands, with Russian government officials under arrest.

Prussian Soldiers In Battle
Soldiers from East Prussia, which borders Lithuania, were reported by a correspondent to have gone into battle enthusiastically since their homeland was "threatened in the first line" by the Russian army.

"Never will they allow Russians to cross the East Prussian border," the correspondent said. German military sources attempting to estimate the strength of the Russian military machine admit they are handicapped because Russia had sealed herself "hermetically" from the rest of the world.

Russian files generally are rated as good, as proved by the Spanish war but their machines are not up to German standards. The fleet is set down as "over-age."

An indication of the Russian strategy was given by a reporter who said he flew over a Russian city which was completely burned out although it had not been attacked by the Germans.

Constantine Oumansky, the Soviet ambassador, has not called at the state department since the German invasion of his country. It was understood that he was waiting for definite instructions from Moscow before undertaking discussions on American help.

He was active, however, in obtaining release of the "Troika" assets.

Government Fails

he was not yet able to disclose what other steps the government might take if the civil service plan was unfruitful.

Those who did show up for Civil Service enrollment had to stand in line for hours. The registration desk at Bethlehem could accommodate only two of them an hour.

There were forms and questionnaires to be filled out, examinations to be taken, administration of the oath of citizenship, fingerprinting and physical checkup.

Machinists under Civil Service in government shops have somewhat better working condition than those in private plants. Their wage scale is the same but they receive vacations with pay, holidays off and sick benefits.

American Ships Carry Supplies To the Far East

Operators Ask Congress for Just Compensation Provisions

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Operators of American merchant ships told senators today they were carrying national defense supplies to the Red Sea, Rangoon in the Far East, and newly-established naval bases.

The testimony about operations under the Lease-Lend bill and National Defense programs was given at a public hearing of the Senate Commerce committee when ship operators asked numerous changes in a house-approved bill to establish "priorities" on virtually all merchant ships operating from the United States.

The ship operators asked the senate to exempt them from "just compensation" under the proposed legislation which would place their ships under warrants of the Maritime commission that would control cargo, destination, and operations.

At present all American vessels are operating under voluntary control of the commission and ship operators cited their services on this basis to support their plea for a "just compensation" provision.

D. S. Morrison, of the American-Hawaiian line, said a large part of his thirty-two ships had been used for "Lease-Lend cargo to the Red Sea," presumably for supplies for English, Free French and other forces opposing the Axis powers.

J. W. Von Herbulis, official of the Waterman Steamship Line testified that of thirty-seven ships under his control twenty-one had aided the national defense program, including four sent to the Red Sea, and one to Rangoon, Burma, whence supplies have been carried to China over the Burma road.

Fort Meade Troops Will Take Part in U.S.O. Parade

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., June 24 (AP)—About 4,000 Fort Meade troops from six states and the District of Columbia will take part tomorrow morning in a Baltimore parade inaugurating a fund raising campaign of the United Service Organizations.

The organization is raising money to provide recreation facilities for service men in localities near military stations, posts and cantonments.

The troops, traveling in a column of 300 motor vehicles, are scheduled to assemble at the Fifth Regiment armory in Baltimore at 9 a. m. Both foot soldiers and motor elements will be included in the parade, which is to include Governor O'Connor and his staff.

The units will include the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth combat team, made up of approximately 3,200 Virginia, Maryland and Washington, D. C. troops under the command of Col. Edwin P. Conquest.

The combat team will be reinforced by the First battalion of the One Hundred and Seventy-sixth field artillery, from Pittsburgh; Company C of the Ninety-third anti-tank battalion, with men from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Washington; a detachment of the One Hundred and Ninety-first tank battalion, from Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York and Virginia; and a detachment of the One Hundred and Ninety-fourth ordnance company, Washington unit.

Weather in Nearby States

WEST VIRGINIA—Fair Wednesday and Thursday; slightly warmer Thursday.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA—Fair with moderate temperature Wednesday; Thursday fair and slightly warmer.

The suspension, affecting eighteen projects, will temporarily cut from the WPA rolls 529 of the approximately 600 persons employed locally.

In the district of which Frederick is apart about 2,203 of the present enrollment of about 3,700 will continue on WPA work. Frederick will feel a sharper reduction than some other sections because the airport is the only local defense project.

Frederick, Md., June 24 (AP)—All WPA work in Frederick city and county with the exception of the airport and the sewing room project will be suspended as of June 30, district offices of the Works Projects Administration announced today.

Finns Say Border Again Violated By Soviet Planes

Motorboat Bombed, Helicopter Declares in Holding to Neutrality

HELSINKI, Finland, June 24 (AP)—Russian planes again have violated Finnish territory and have bombed a Finnish motorboat in the Turku archipelago, it was officially announced tonight.

A communiqué said the captain of the boat was wounded by a bomb fragment when the vessel was attacked off Utoe.

The communiqué said the latest violations of the Finnish territory occurred Monday.

Early in the morning, between 1:20 a. m. and 4:45 numerous Soviet scout planes flew deep into Finland high over Kuusmo and Toke.

Later two fighters came east of Hango and then flew toward the sea.

General Ernst Linder, who led the Swedish Volunteer Corps in the Finnish-Russian war of 1939-40, arrived today in Helsinki to study the new threat to Baltic peace and was quoted by the state information bureau as saying Sweden's defenses were rapidly progressing.

Watchful Waiting Policy
(The implications of his reference to Swedish defenses were not disclosed. The Bern bureau of the Associated Press, relaying the dispatch, reported that the Helsinki correspondent was not permitted to send the full text of the communiqué concerning General Linder's statement.)

Apparently determined to cling to neutrality unless war is thrust upon her, Finland passed the third day of the German-Russian war in watchful waiting and continued defense preparation.

(A Rome radio declaration that Finnish soldiers definitely are fighting beside the Germans on a front from the Arctic ocean to the Baltic sea was heard in New York by NBC.)

With emergency mobilization still in progress, the army had manned the defenses of the eastern frontier and coastal outposts.

Preparing for the national flag day to filling saw bags, boarding up windows, and mounting anti-aircraft guns.

Await Protest Answer
Finns seemed to feel their course may be determined by Moscow's response to Finland's protest of yesterday against the bombing of Turku (ABO) and other towns by Soviet warplanes.

Neutral sources in Bern, Switzerland, said the Finnish government was expected to issue a formal declaration tomorrow of the nation's position in the war as that of a neutral defending her own borders.

War had come close to Finland, however, for today Helsinki and other coastal towns heard explosions in the direction of Estonia, across the Baltic, and aerial lookouts reported smoke rising in that direction.

Most WPA Work Will Be Stopped In Frederick June 30

FREDERICK, Md., June 24 (AP)—All WPA work in Frederick city and county with the exception of the airport and the sewing room project will be suspended as of June 30, district offices of the Works Projects Administration announced today.

Season for Marlin Opens with Parade

OCEAN CITY, Md., June 23 (AP).—Fishermen cast their lines today for the prized marlin—a sport now ranking as a $500,000 business—after the season was officially opened by a two-mile long boat parade.

An estimated 10,000 persons lined this resort's boardwalk yesterday to watch the fourth annual parade with thirty-nine pleasure and commercial craft, their pennants whipped by a strong southeast breeze, sailing through the inlet into the ocean.

Capt. Thomas T. Moore, retired U. S. coast guardman, was chief marshal of the parade, led by a U. S. coast cutter. Spaced out offshore, the boats formed a line about two-miles long. Delegate Calvin P. Pruitt of Worcester county was host at a banquet for twenty-eight persons before the parade.

Parents Who Are Rude to Children Set Bad Example

Mother or Father Often Answers Questions Directed to Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

One day, some years ago, when my youngest son was about nine, he and I went shopping. He stopped at the drug store and I continued toward the grocery. He soon came rushing in to me with, "Dad, if I had twenty more cents to put with my nickel I could buy a magazine." "Dad, if I had twenty more cents to put with my nickel I could buy a magazine." "Dad, if I had twenty more cents to put with my nickel I could buy a magazine."

Unintentionally Rude
I did not mean to be so rude. I merely acted as my native impulses prompted me. My concern about adult conventions made me callous to the courtesy I owed my son.

In the "Modern Parent" I wrote, "The child of three is sitting at the fireside with his parents. He begins to tell about the adventures of his imaginary companions. On and on he goes in great enthusiasm. His parents seem to be listening. His mother's eyes are riveted upon his face. When the child has almost reached the climax of his story, the mother says: 'Come here, dear, and let me see your eye.' I never noticed that little spot on your eyelid before, Daddy. It must be a mole.' Father is concerned and they begin to talk about the mole. If they had even heard what the boy said it is forgotten."

Child's Disappointment
"How disappointed the child is! He had felt that this one time his parents were really listening to his story and were enjoying it with him. Now he knows that the most important thing to him in all the world is of less importance than a spot upon his eye.

According to the official German caption accompanying this photo, which was flashed by radio from Berlin to New York, it shows a German machine gun crew in position on the eastern frontier as the Nazi army invaded Russia. This is the first military picture to reach the United States following outbreak of hostilities.

"Poor child! He can do nothing about it. They are his parents; they are so big and strong and wonderful, and they know so much. He is weak and small and unimportant, and he knows so little."

"We parents tend to answer the questions directed to the child; and when he is engaged in conversation with an adult we may butt in and steal his words. An adolescent girl said that she never knew the time when she was allowed to complete a sentence at home."

Relatives Rude to Each Other
"We parents assume we can answer for our children better than they can. Then we know children are pretty honest! They might tell what is so; we can touch it up so as to put the family in good light."

"For the same reasons some husbands speak and answer for their wives and some wives are generous like that with their husbands. I find that when I visit among my rural relatives they often speak for me and that when they visit me among my urban friends I, in like manner, speak for them."

I suppose we parents can't always brag much about our manners towards our children. If we were as rude to our adult friends we would have no friends.

Higher Estate and Gift Taxes Favored By House Committee

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Higher estate and gift taxes, estimated to yield approximately $113,700,000 more than current rates have been recommended tentatively by the House Ways and Means committee as part of its plan to raise $3,500,000,000 additional revenue annually.

The committee figured that these levies, together with the new individual income and corporation taxes already tentatively agreed upon, would produce a total of about $2,594,600,000.

It is proposed to raise the remaining $905,000,000 needed to attain the $3,500,000,000 goal by excise taxes which are levied such as those now imposed on whiskey, beer, new automobiles and refrigerators. Taxes on soft drinks and higher rates on gasoline and theater tickets are until Friday.

Seventy-Ton Monster Result of Three Years' Planning and Two Years' Construction

The United States new aerial behemoth—the giant B-19 bomber—as it will look in flight. White area of map indicates the plane's long cruising range.

By DON GLASSMAN
Written for Central Press and the Cumberland News

LOS ANGELES — Unveiled recently after five years of rumor and speculation, the first 70-ton bomber airplane, the Douglas B-19, looks like a preview of wonderful things to come.

Few outside the inner circle of officers and engineers concerned with her design and construction know what to make of this flying colossus. She's a mighty big airplane.

The first of her "breed," the B-19 gave many a headache to designers and engineers, for what they had to do was to stretch their imagination, yet hold themselves to the practical limits of aerodynamics and mathematics.

In her delicately-carved contours, the B-19 seduces the eye with a pure simplicity of streamlined sculpture, but inside her gleaming metallic skin you see the staggering complexity of her functional anatomy.

Anyway you look at her, the B-19 invokes the majesty of sheer size. The 212-foot wing—as long as a city block—seems to hang like a cloud. The four 2,000-horsepower engines could drive an ocean vessel; the tips of those 16-foot, sharp-edge propellers take in a wide circle.

Inside the B-19
Up a ladder and into the body of the B-19, you get a rough idea why four acres of blue prints were needed for the design and construction. A rather sensitive bird, the B-19 requires only the strength of a man's finger to send her flying like one of Shelley's blithe spirits.

Look around the ventilated bridge deck, as spacious as your living room. Forward and down several steps the pilots sit where they can see through wide-angle windows. But at a console to the rear of the bridge deck sits the "master mind," whose sharp-practiced eyes read a hundred or more dials, discs, gauges, tables and lights.

What goes on inside the master's mind is insoluble magic to anyone who is not a master mind. The wizard of dials and gauges stored away in his head for instantaneous use, the encyclopedic data pertaining to engines, fuel, navigation, wind, aerodynamics, etc., on that dreadnaught.

Aft of the wing section are living quarters for the 10-man crew, a wardroom with eight fixed beds in double tiers, a dining saloon, and a real galley. On an air vessel this size, provision must be made for refueling and refueling men as well as engines.

Originally "Project D"
In the years she was under construction inside a guarded hangar at Clover field, California, the B-19 was mysteriously known as Project D. All the 500 engineers and mechanics were sworn to secrecy.

and the only visitors admitted were officers from the war department. Not even a glimpse was to be had until just a few weeks before she was ready to fly.

On bombing missions, the B-19's 10-man crew consists of a commander, navigator, radio operator, engineer, pilot, co-pilot and three relief members. The battle stations can also be manned by an extra crew. Doubling as a transport, the B-19 can carry 125 men at a top speed of more than 200 miles per hour. Her specified cruising range is 7,750 miles.

Fuel for the four 2,000-horsepower Wright Duplex-Cyclone engines is stored in wing tanks whose combined capacity equals 11,000 gallons. (A railroad tank car holds about 10,000 gallons.)

Regarding money: In terms of a man's income, the price of the B-19 looms large, in terms of hemisphere defense it is a bargain. The United States treasury staked $1,000,000 and the Douglas Aircraft company spent another $2,000,000 for the prodigious mental effort, skilled labor and material entering into the B-19.

May Revolutionize Warfare
The government acquired exclusive title and the company acquired a matchless experience in the creation of something which may revise aerial combat and reorient the aeronautical industry.

When, in 1935, the Air corps announced the B-19's specifications, only two manufacturers submitted designs. In April, 1936, the Douglas company was named winner of the competition, and immediately expanded its five-year research program. Three and one-half years of engineering, and two years of actual construction, all under the strictest secrecy, were necessary to complete the B-19.

The designers applied available knowledge and experience to the B-19 in an effort to create the most perfect 70-ton aircraft possible. Nine thousand drawings, 700,000 hours of engineering time, 42,500 hours of testing and research, 1,250,000 hours of shop time, were compressed into those five years.

Looking at the final result in the most favorable light, this bird is imperfect; if successors to the B-19 are built they will certainly be superior to this maiden attempt to build an air vessel whose dimensions are comparable to the Navy's men-of-war. Shortcomings notwithstanding, the B-19 fulfills the first dream of a giant space ship.

How Big B-19 Is
You get a rough idea of comparative size when you compare the B-19 with other big military aircraft, to wit, the Martin B-26, weight, 13 tons; the Consolidated B-24, weight, 20 tons.

The largest civil aircraft thus far is the $1,000,000, 42-ton Boeing clipper, recently built for Pan-American Airways, but transferred to the British Overseas Airways.

None of these craft involved the time, labor, expense or headaches that entered into the B-19. "This airplane," a high army official said, "represents a further step toward solving questions concerning the best combination of speed, size, range, weight, and load capacity of a modern bomber."

Gen. H. H. Arnold, deputy chief of staff for the Air corps, told me that, "It was necessary to build the B-19 in order to learn the practical limits of big bomber construction. We frankly don't know."

186 Miles Per Hour

At normal operating speed, 186 miles per hour, it would take about two days and two nights for the B-19's engines to consume the fuel in her tanks.

With a full cargo of bombs, 18-

000 pounds, in addition to crew, food, small ammunition, water, etc., the cruising range is reduced proportionately, but still the B-19 could span a continent or an ocean. With full load, the B-19 weighs a total of 164,000 pounds.

A round-trip between New York and Paris, non-stop, makes a comfortable jaunt for the B-19. Or she can fly from Los Angeles to Manila, Rio de Janeiro to New York, or Honolulu to Fairbanks, Alaska, without pausing for rest or fuel.

With two fuel stops she can circumnavigate the globe near the Equator, and with one fuel stop she can fly from the North to the South Pole.

Unquestionably she mounts heavier armament than any aircraft in existence, and although sheer mass makes her a big target, she can fire devastating broadsides while sowing a load of high-explosive bombs. The Air Corps has not divulged what measures will be taken to guard the B-19 in hostile territory, but a fighter plane escort seems in order.

How do young people become engaged nowadays?

If you're curious about it, ask some engaged pair you know well enough to question intimately.

It's ten chances to one that the man, dazed and infatuated, will tell you "it just happened," but that the girl, however much in love, will be able to give you a fairly clear account of the memorable episode. Which suggests that during the progress of a love-affair a girl often keeps her head more steadily than a man, if she doesn't actually plan the whole thing from beginning to end.

My own view is that a girl capable not only of genuine love but of wisely choosing her future husband, really ought to put some energy into the matter and that she should not be too passive.

Suggested by Letter

All of which is suggested by a letter that came to me the other day from Kay G., a bride of two weeks. Kay is married, she believes, to just the right man. She is blissfully happy. Her husband adores her. They have a charming little house and no outside worries. Their life you'd think, would be Paradise.

But Kay is having a fit of remorse. She felt that she must confess to somebody, and she confessed to me. If I hadn't answered her letter promptly, she might also have confessed to her husband.

Confessed what? you will ask, in alarm. Why, merely that Kay herself was responsible for her engagement and marriage. Her husband, she now feels, didn't have a fair chance. If she had been making a free choice, would he ever have chosen a girl so inferior to his noble self as Kay, passionately in love with him, now feels herself to be?

Kay, is 20. Her husband is 28. A serious girl with rather a sober type of beauty, she never felt much at ease with frivolous and immature youngsters of her own age. The moment her eyes lighted on Ted, she knew that something important happened within her hitherto unoccupied heart. Ted was in full possession. Every day she fell more tumultuously in love with him. She must marry him, she felt, or life would be nothing but dust and ashes.

Her big problem from that time on was to see that Ted felt the same way about her. She made herself as sweet and charming as she could, contrived repeated meetings with him, coaxed her mother to invite him often to their house. She went after him, in fact, hammer and tongs. And why not?

Way Made Easy
As it happened, Ted wasn't interested in any other girl. But, absorbed in business, he might not have singled Kay out from the rest of the world if the way hadn't been made easy for him. As it was, he saw that she was his Heaven-appointed mate, fell in love with her and fell hard. By the time they were married, he believed the arrangement was his own idea and prided himself on it.

And Kay would be most unwise to shatter that belief. She and her husband are deeply, tenderly in love with each other. They are thoroughly well-suited. If the happy wife needs any reassurance, she ought to find it in the fact that her course hasn't after all been so different from that of many other girls. She admits that she took the lead in getting herself engaged and married. Not all girls make the admission. Kay happens to be unusually straightforward and guileless. Don't you think she has every reason to expect a happy life?

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

SEE THROUGH HIS PLAN

MUCH OF the very finest defense comes from detecting what the declarer is likely to try, and then keeping him from doing it. Sometimes this requires the keenest of card-reading by both partners, combined with perfect cooperation between them at various stages of the journey through the hand. If either makes anything but the exactly right move at any critical spot, then all the rest of the good work is wasted.

Pass Pass Pass Pass

Here was an extremely tight hand of the kind duplicate tournament players love, with Lee Hazen, national individual masters champion, in the East and his wife in the West leading skillful work by South.

The diamond K was followed by a small one to the J, and the first crisis was at hand. If Mr. Hazen now led his diamond A, the defense which developed would have been impossible, as will be shown later. Instead, he returned the heart 2 to the Q, and South also took his heart A, then led to the spade K and ruffed dummy's last diamond. The spade A dropped the defenders' last trumps, and a club to the K lost to the A.

Right here Mrs. Hazen rose to

the occasion. She calculated that, if South had the club J with his four shown by the bidding, he would have played it instead of the K. So her husband had it, as a singleton now. Hence a lead of the club Q would drop it and set up the dummy's 10. Lead of a heart, apparently the natural lead, would enable South to ruff out the last heart and lead a club. If she led the J with this, her husband would be end-played, obliged to lead a red card and furnish a ruff and discard. If, however, she won it, overtaking the J, she would set up the 10.

Only one lead remained—the right one—a small club. Mr. Hazen won it with the J and had a heart left for exit, declarer ruffing. Now there was no way for South to avoid losing the setting trick to the club Q.

A bit of study will show you that if Mr. Hazen had returned his diamond A to the third trick, the declarer would have been able to time the play so that he could have wound up with the combination end-play which he later strained to develop in vain.

UP FROM THE DEPTHS WHERE THE O-9 RESTS

The U. S. submarine 202 is shown back on the surface after a dive to the depths where the O-9 went down in 440 feet of water off Portsmouth, N. H. The 202 is a heavy-type submarine, more able to withstand the terrific pressure at this depth than the small O-9. It was in this area that ominous pieces of wreckage, air bubbles and oil slick rose to the surface.

Telephone Operator Held for Making Book in Courthouse

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP)—Earl R. Harris, telephone operator in the Superior Court record office has been held under a $1,000 bail for grand jury action on charges of making a book on horse races.

Bail was set by Magistrate Elmer J. Hammer following a hearing at which Paul B. Miles, counsel for Harris, attacked wire-tapping by police as a "most vicious practice."

Patrolman Phillip Germack testified that on June 10 he was sent to the courthouse basement to tap the telephone terminal and on six separate days heard bets called in.

Harris was arrested when a squad led by Sergeant Alexander Emerson raided the Superior court record office Friday.

Miles asserted the search warrant under which the raid was made was drawn improperly in that it was based on "hearsay" testimony of the wire-tapping detective.

Hitler's Surprises Come on Week-Ends

[By The Associated Press] Many of Adolf Hitler's biggest surprises, including his latest, have burst on the world during week-ends.

His declaration of war on Russia came at dawn on Sunday and he sent his legions into Yugoslavia and Greece on another Sunday morning. It was on a September week-end in 1939 that he sent his forces into Poland and that Britain and France declared war on Germany. It was on another week-end before the war that his forces rolled into the Rhineland, demilitarized under the Versailles treaty.

The purge by which he wiped out dissident elements in the Nazi party occurred on a June Saturday in 1934. Even before he came to power one of the first events which brought him to power occurred on Saturday — the Munich beer hall putsch.

And he was born on a Saturday in April, 1889.

Maryland Summer School Opens Today

COLLEGE PARK, Md. June 24 (AP)—Registration of 1,400 students has given the University of Maryland summer school its largest enrollment in history. Miss Alma Prienkeet, registrar, reported.

Two hundred courses will be given by a faculty of 116 in the session ending August 1. Instruction began today.

A highlight will be the fifth annual "World Today" course, dealing this year with "The World and War." It will be under direction of Dr. Reuben G. Steinmeyer, professor of political science.

The lecture series, presenting prominent speakers, will deal with "Norway in the War," Russia, Bulgaria, "The Baltic Problem," "The Axis Powers," "France Behind the Headlines," Turkey, India, China, Japan, the Philippines, Dutch East Indies, "Subversive Activities in the United States," and "Toward a New World Order."

Another course, "Radio the World Today," will bring such speakers as Eric Sevareid, foreign correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System, commentators from the other broadcasting systems, and Dr. Sigmond Skard, formerly of the University of Oslo.

Employment and Payrolls Up in May

BALTIMORE, June 24 (AP)—Maryland factory employment and payrolls showed substantial increases during May, a month usually contributing decreases, labor and statistics commissioner John M. Pohlhaus reports.

Employment gained 3.6 per cent from April, and payrolls increased 8.6 per cent, the commissioner said.

"It is significant that only six other years of the past eighteen has employment gained in the April-May comparison," Pohlhaus added. The typical reaction from April to May during the last eighteen years has been a loss of 7 per cent in employment and a decline of 2 per cent in payrolls, he said.

Brewery Plant Is Host to Jaycees

Committees Meet with Directors, President To Plan Work

Members of the various Junior Association of Commerce committees met Monday night with their newly elected president John McAlpine and discussed just what each committee would do this year.

McAlpine asked the members to outline the work to be done and suggested that arrangements be made for meetings each month this summer. Members of the board of directors also made some suggestions for the year's program and it was decided to have at least one member of each committee meet with the directors in order to assure closer cooperation.

A tour of the Cumberland Brewing Company plant followed an elaborate shrimp feast served by John W. McClure, Jr., of the Tri-State Paper Company, and Braxton Dodson, of the Cumberland News-Times were admitted to membership.

Richard T. Renshaw, of the brewery's advertising staff, and Carl C. Baum, plant superintendent, arranged the tour and connected the Jaycees around the various departments.

Others present at the session were David Kaufman, John P. Schmitt, John H. Winkman, P. Allen Weather, George A. Schwarzenbach, John Towler, Eugene Howell, James B. Reinhardt, Frederick Steiding, Bruce Fable, Leo P. Brown, James A. Arvett, Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson, James T. White and Charles S. Catherman, Jr.

Allegany County Man Makes Application For Parole

Three Allegany County Men Get Appointments To Officers' Reserve

Three Allegany county men are among forty-nine Marylanders who have accepted appointment to the Officers' Reserve Corps, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington.

LeRoy Stanley Whitson, 323 City View Terrace, Cumberland, and William Francis Gannon, Main street, Westport, were named second lieutenants in the Infantry Reserve, while Ralph Frost Crump, 11 Standish street, Frostburg, was appointed second lieutenant in the Quartermaster Reserve.

Others from Western Maryland included Hugh Gifford Downs Jr., Hagerstown, second lieutenant, Infantry Reserve; Chauncey Monroe Sanner, Frederick, second lieutenant, Quartermaster Reserve; and Dwight Elmer de Lawter, Williamsport, first lieutenant, Medical Reserve.

He went on to explain that proof was required to convince James L. Smith, who had objected strongly to Billy's marrying his daughter, Mary Louise Smith, said Billy, has the idea that fighters aren't gentlemen.

As for the acting role, the main purpose of Billy's trip from Pittsburgh is to sign a contract to appear in a motion picture version of Octavus Roy Cohen's story, "Kiss Kiss." Conn expects to receive $25,000 for playing the part of the boxer hero.

An increase of 1,134 carsloads handled is also shown over the previous week of this year. The week ended June 14, when the total was 63,623 cars handled with 41,662 loaded on line and 21,961 received from connections. For the corresponding week in the year 1930, the total was 64,114 of which 43,050 cars were loaded on line and 21,064 were received from connections.

Food Hoarding

the prices of imported staples such as sugar and coffee, reflecting the uncertainty of shipping facilities. Prices of many domestic products also advanced, including pork, butter, canned vegetables and certain fresh fruits and vegetables. To some extent these increases were offset by season decline in egg prices, which are now about twenty-five per cent lower than they were last December.

Preliminary reports for April 15 indicate further advances, particularly for pork, lard and sugar.

"Rents paid by many wage earners were raised between December and mid-March, even though as a rule comparatively few families moved to new homes during the winter months. Average rents were higher in all but five of the thirty-four cities covered by the Bureau's cost-of-living index. Reports indicate that some other tenants had their rents raised during April and May.

"In most large cities, even where defense work is expanding, the rent bill has increased little on the average. Families that have not moved have not for the most part, had their rents changed since December. Newcomers have faced serious housing shortages and high rentals.

Clothing Costs Up

"Clothing costs, which declined 12 per cent between December and February as a result of seasonal sales, increased 17 per cent between February and March and were 0.5 per cent higher in mid-March than in December. The main reason for these increases is the higher cost of woolen and cotton goods, particularly goods similar to those which the army has been buying. Increases were also reported for percale yard goods, as well as for clothing made from percale. In a number of cities over the quarter between December and March prices of men's wool suits moved up by 12 per cent and overalls by 22 per cent. Price increases were also generally reported for men's felt hats and shoes.

"Since the outbreak of war and particularly since last spring, the widest changes in clothing prices have been for men's clothing. Prices for overalls and work shirts, inexpensive wool topcoats and wool suits have all risen by more than five per cent in the last year. In general, prices for women's clothing have not advanced as much as men's, partly because army purchases have not affected the fabric entering into women's clothing as directly and partly because it is easier to economize in the cut and trim of women's garments without making measurable changes in quality.

"These facts, therefore, indicate that the increase in living costs have been held to a very reasonable figure. This has been accomplished through the co-operative efforts of the manufacturers and your local distributors and without the necessity of governmental regulations.

"You, as customers, can help maintain a normal price level if you refrain from the purchase of unnecessary quantities of food items. Your interest will be protected if you will help the retail merchant to help you."

In May the number of articles distributed was not as great as April because of warmer weather which eliminated the need for heavier clothing.

Clothing distributed in May included four women's dresses, seventeen children's dresses, one infant's dress, three articles of women's underwear, eight pieces of children's underwear and two pieces of men's underwear.

Getting Rid of Freckles Not Easy But Several Bleaches Can Be Used

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., of oxygen as a bleaching agent. Before long the question which supersedes questions of state and international geography will be coming to my desk: "How to prevent freckles?"

There is a kind of psychological aspect to freckles; sometimes they are cute, and sometimes they are a curse. Under the age of six they are cute. Later they are likely to be objectionable.

Everything about freckles is easy to explain except why they exist. The dermatologist tells us they are tiny blotches of tan. They are just like ordinary sun tan or tanning of the skin in other people, but in blondes and red heads the pigment spots turn especially dark and stand out and are separated from the rest of the skin by white areas or oceans of white.

Removing Freckles

The dermatologist also tells us that freckles usually stay with a person for a long time, sometimes permanently. What the dermatologist does not tell us is why some people should freckle and some people should not. All we know is that the blondes and red heads seem to have a dearth of spots instead of being evenly distributed.

Getting rid of freckles is also not quite as easy as it sounds. The pigment lies deep in the skin and on the surface. The most we can do is to bleach or perhaps remove the upper layer of the skin. Be careful that you do not use a preparation which contains mercury. Mercury is effective but dangerous. Ordinary hydrogen peroxide is helpful when it is full strength and fresh. It works through the action of oxygen as a bleaching agent. Lemon juice is also good. The following additional formula may be used:

Formula No. 1 (Cream)
Peroxide of hydrogen 24 parts
Glycerin 24 parts
Lanolin (anhydrous) 100 parts
Mix by emulsification. Apply to freckled area whenever you can.

Formula No. 2 (Lotion)
Potassium carbonate 4-parts
Potassium chlorate 1 part
Borax 1 part
Glycerin 10 parts
Water to make 100 parts
Apply at night and whenever feasible.

Formula No. 3 (Lotion)
Glycerin 1 part
Alcohol 16 parts
Lemon juice to make 100 parts
Mix well. Apply as often as three times a day.

Formula No. 4 (Paste)
Freckle Preventive
Quinine Sulfate 1 part
Petrolatum (rite) 60 parts
Applied to exposed areas before going in sun may prevent freckles.

A. G., Bellevue, Ohio.—"Could such a symptom as dull, aching pain in the chest, coming on after strain, fatigue or excitement, in a person with a positive tuberculin reaction mean tuberculosis? What proportion of adults have a positive tuberculin reaction?"

Answer: A positive tuberculin reaction in an adult has no significance. Nine-tenths of all adults have a positive tuberculin reaction. Your symptoms suggest heart strain rather than tuberculosis. Tuberculosis seldom produces a chest pain.

More Objectors in State Forest Camp

ELKRIDGE, Md., June 23. (AP)—A second group of campers has reported to the nation's first conscientious objectors' camp in Patapsco state forest near here, ready to begin a year's service to their country in non-military projects.

The campers greeted by the new camp director, Eugene S. Wilson, Jr., of Amherst, Mass., who assumed charge of the American Friends Service committee project late last week.

Wilson succeeded Dr. Ernest A. Wildman of Richmond, Ind., who set up the camp. Dr. Wildman resigned to take charge of a volunteer camp near Cloverdale, Mich., sponsored by the friends.

Camp officials said that twenty-nine objectors were originally scheduled to arrive at the camp today, but that reclassification would probably reduce the number. Twenty-six young men have been at work around the camp since its opening on June 15.

Was It True Love or Hero Worship? Hartwell Didn't Know and Anne Didn't Care, but It Had To Be Settled

By GRETA CHRISTIANSEN

At 18 Anne Sayres was tall and slender with an air of other-world dreaminess that made the townfolk of Crandon resort to the word "different" when they tried to describe her. And her name was often on their tongues because things were always happening to Anne Sayres—things like being awarded the lead ed said it was, for after all, they pointed out, Hartwell had money, fame, background, everything a girl could ask for in a husband. And Anne, they said, it would give her a chance "to get away from Crandon."

Then there were those who didn't think getting away from Crandon was so important. "What's wrong with Crandon?" they would question in defensive pride. And they would remember how sweet Anne and Clay had looked when they had off the senior prom. "Why Coleman must be years older than she is," they protested.

And what about Anne's father? Well, poor Mr. Sayres was rather at a loss in affairs of the heart, a little abashed when the famous Hartwell appeared at his door to ask if his daughter was home. All he could do when he and Anne were alone was to indulge in vague remarks about "marrying someone nearer your own age" and "that McDowell boy's a fine lad. Secretly, the lonely widower wished that there was a woman about to take a hand in this."

The soft spring breeze blew through the maple trees that surrounded the Sayres' porch, and gently ruffled Anne's hair, giving her a gamine-like look that utterly delighted Coleman as he sat before her on the swing, telling her of the wonders of New York, of the little eccentricities of the celebrities of stage and screen that he knew, and finally he said, "You know, I'll be leaving here in a few days now. I have to be in New York before the end of the week."

Mr. Sayres looked up from the paper that he was pretending to read when he heard this, and he saw the look of pain that crossed Anne's face as she protested, "Oh, not so soon, Coleman!"

With a kind of sinking feeling, Mr. Sayres got up and went into the house. Somehow he knew that tonight Hartwell was going to ask Anne to marry him, and in his gruff way, Sayres knew that this was really Anne's problem, and he left her to settle it her own way, as she felt best. And yet, she still was a "baby" to him despite her 18 years and all her grownup airs.

As the seven door banged behind Mr. Sayres, Coleman took both Anne's hands in his. "Anne, I want to take you to New York with me. I want to marry you, Anne."

Though she had been half-expecting him to say this, Anne was a little taken back. And the answer that she had toiled with in her mind for days floated mistily out of memory. There was still in her that schoolgirl worship for an "author," and though, in her cloak of pseudo-sophistication, she would never have admitted this to anyone, she was still a little in awe of this man in awe of all he knew, had seen and had done.

Before she could answer him, there came the sound of feet running across the lawn, and then the sight of a windblown girl stumbling breathlessly up the stairs. It was Elizabeth, Anne's best friend. "Anne, we've been waiting for you at the station!" she panted excitedly. "Have you forgotten? Paul Kent's train arrives in eight minutes!"

"Paul Kent?" Anne gasped as she started up from the swing. "Will you excuse me? she called back hastily to Coleman, not waiting for his confused answer, as she started after Elizabeth."

She bumped into her father as he was coming out the door to see what all the excitement was about. "Paul Kent's coming!" she explained briefly as she brushed past him and was off on a mad dash to the station.

There was a funny little twinkle in Mr. Sayres' eyes as he turned to Hartwell and remarked in answer to his unspoken query, "She's president of the Paul Kent Fan Club."

Hartwell looked at Mr. Sayres, and a glance of deep understanding passed between the two men. As he knocked his pipe thoughtfully against the banister, "It's funny," he remarked philosophically, "how girls that age can sometimes almost make you believe that they're really grown up."

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Distributed by Central Press Association)

ERADICATING POISON IVY
Poison ivy, is, no doubt, one of the most dangerous of pests when growing in our gardens.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, it is frequently confused with the Virginia Creeper. Poison ivy has three leaflets, while Virginia Creeper has five. The leaves are glossy above and somewhat hairy beneath. The flowers are greenish and the small berry-like fruits are a grayish white.

There are many ways to eradicate this climbing shrub, such as digging it out (with gloves) and burning. Another method is to mix three pounds of common salt to one gallon of water and apply to the foliage several times during the summer. If the vine is very large it should be cut off at ground level and the brine poured on the roots. This should be repeated again in two weeks.

Thoroughly wetting with kerosene oil is most effective but great care should be used so as not to get the oil on surrounding soil or plants. As a rule, new soil will have to replace the oil-soaked soil before anything else can be grown in that same spot.

DEATH AT THE SWITCH

RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE
HENRY FOUND his son standing with his back to the model railroad right-of-way, hands gripping the table behind him. The 15-year-old boy's wide eyes stared at the outer door of the big room. It shut with a jar and a click, and footsteps ran across the outer porch.

Henry, although he had dashed into the room expecting the worst, was unarmed. He asked breathlessly, "Who was it?"

The boy could only point to the door. He had lost his voice.

From under the scenery, in from the train dispatcher's room, ducked Laurence Harkness. He gripped a screwdriver in one hand like a dagger. "No one here," he said.

"There was," said Henry. "Richard saw him. He went out the door. What did he look like, Richard?"

The boy shook his head. "I—I only saw half his face. I heard the door opening. He peeked in and saw me and pulled his head back again."

A crash sounded overhead. "He's entered the lodge!" Laurence gasped. "Maybe we can trap him."

It seemed a foolhardy idea to Henry. "Suppose he's got a gun?" "He'll think we have guns, too," "But we haven't!"

"Good grief!" exclaimed Laurence. "This may be our only chance to get to the bottom of the mystery of lives' death. Are we going to let it slip through our hands?"

Again the deciding factor was Henry's desire to appear a hero to his son. "All right," he agreed. "What will we do?"

"Follow him!" "Gosh!" said Richard.

Henry grabbed up the only weapon he could find—a brace from a wooden packing case. It had a wicked looking nail in the end. Laurence led the way out the door, with Henry close behind and Richard in the rear.

Laurence paused in the shelter of the overhanging roof. "Maybe he'll try to escape through the back door. I'll run around there, you and Richard go in through the front door. Make plenty of noise. I'll hide my candle and wait for him. If he makes a dash for the back door I may get a look at his face."

Henry groaned. "Richard, if only you were better acquainted with the members of the club and had recognized him!"

"Gosh, Pop, it's not my fault. I don't know them better. You know I wanted . . ."

"Well, never mind now," Henry grasped his son by an arm as Laurence ran around the building to the left. "Deepen your voice. Pretend you're a man. We'll try to scare this fellow into thinking we are the police."

They sped through the rain to the shelter of the porch. "Come on, Sergeant," said Henry loudly. "And you, too, Lieutenant. He's in the building. He can't get away from us!"

"Okay, Chief!" Richard's voice trembled slightly in spite of its bass. Henry hoped the murderer would mistake the tremble for the eagerness of a fighting man in a hurry to reach the kill.

"Follow me, men!" Henry ordered, and stomped into the building in imitation of an army.

Across the threshold, of a sudden the darkness told him it was all silly and futile. No murderer was going to be fooled by so patent a trick. And suppose the fellow was standing there, watching their silhouettes as they came in the doorway?

Fear had Henry by the heart. He leaped sideways, pulling Richard with him.

"Gosh, Pop!" whispered the boy. "Did you hear something?" Henry sought desperately for his courage. "Everything's okay, Sergeant," he boomed. "Keep your gun ready. Too bad we haven't enough men to surround the building. He may run for the back door."

Richard whispered, "I thought we wanted him to go that way?" "We do," Henry breathed. "Laurence has the only light to recognize him by." Louder he said, "We've got the front door blocked. Lieutenant. Keep your flashlights ready, men. I'd like to get a look at this fellow."

Pulling Richard behind him, Henry moved toward the right through the inky blackness of the hall. He walked heavily, then cautioned his "men" to be careful.

"Not so much noise, fellows! Maybe we can sneak up on him." He began to rise up and down on his toes when he found the floor would squeak under him. It sounded like a dozen men tiptoeing down the hall, he hoped.

The building was tenanted by strange sounds. Henry tried to convince himself it was just a colony of bats that their presence was disturbing into flight. There were tappings on the walls, thin scrappings, the drip of unseen water like the footsteps of a ghost pacing one of the empty rooms.

"I—I don't like this!" chattered his son.

"Okay, C-captain!" said Henry to hearten him. "Bringing that sub-machine gun was a g-good idea. Keep it up front so your men won't be in the way when you start firing." A moment later he added for good measure, "Put on your masks. We may have to use the tear gas!"

Still there was no sign that they were pursuing anything except a phantom conjured up in their own imaginations. Henry stood motionless. He decided they had gone too far from the exit already. The fellow wasn't scaring easily. Suppose he didn't stare at all? Suppose he called their bluff!

Richard lifted his lips close to one of his father's ears. "Listen! I hear boards creaking!"

There was no mistaking it—a faint sound that could only be made by the cautious movement of a heavy body.

"He's not far away!" "He's opening a window!"

The shrill protest of a long unused shaft being lifted out through the night. Shoes scraped across a window sill.

"Heh!" cried Laurence from the rear of the building. "There he goes! Catch him, Henry!"

Henry had no intention of doing any catching, but he was emboldened to the flight of his quarry. Down the hall he and Richard ran. They found the dim glow that marked the window. It was open. A cold wind blew in.

Henry stuck his head outside. His eyes saw fairly well, as they were accustomed to the deeper darkness inside. The man they were after was stumbling across a field toward the road. There was something vaguely familiar about the lurch of his gait, but Henry couldn't identify him.

They walked back toward the front door, their hearts easier. "I wonder why he came here?" Richard asked.

"There's an old saying that a criminal returns to the scene of his crime."

On the front porch, they paused, and fumbled along the wall until they retrieved the umbrellas they had left there on first entering the building.

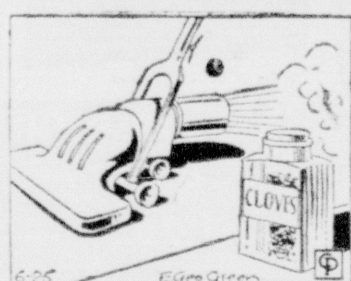

"Do you think he'll come back?" "I'm sure of it. He's a member of the model railroad club. He'll have to come here—and appear innocent."

They walked down the steps to the basement train room. "Pop!" whispered Richard. "There's someone else inside! Do you suppose he's come back already, while we were getting the umbrellas?" He moved to protection behind his father.

Henry thought it must be Laurence, but it was not Laurence. He took a step back, treading on Richard's toes in the doorway. It was Hans Svenson!

Marx Hit Features Spectacular Music

In a time when such musical extravaganzas as "Ziegfeld Girl," "That Night in Rio" and "Sonny" are sweeping Hollywood, leave it to the Marx Brothers to go them all one better. Not that the Marxes haven't always gone in for music in their funfests, but their latest, "The Big Store," presents a greater musical array than any Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture in several years, excepting the Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy films.

The department store comedy, starring the Marxes as private detectives, opens today at the Maryland theater.

The madcap Marxes learned the lesson that "music heals all wounds and breaks box office records" when they made "Room Service" in 1938. It didn't have any music, the only Marx picture of its kind. It didn't even have Harpo's selection on the harp or Chico's piano solo — and they still get complaints about it through the mail.

In sharp contrast, "A Night at the Opera," the picture which stressed music more than any other Marx venture to date, met with the greatest success — with public and critics alike.

Taking their cue from these two pictures, the Marxes have featured five unusual numbers in their latest venture, topped off, of course, by Harpo and Chico's usual specialty tunes. The latter's selection is a definite novelty in that it is not strictly a solo. Although Chico carries the burden of the number and features his "shooting the keys" technique, Harpo joins his brother at the keys for the first time.

Tony Martin plays the romantic lead in the film and outdoes his musical performance in "Ziegfeld Girl" with two songs, the "Tenement Symphony" number and "If It's You," co-authored by Arlie Blum.

Rathbone Starred In Mystery Thriller

The wagon rattled desperately through the night. A woman held tightly to the reins, and beside her too young to be frightened, sat her two children. Her husband hid under the box-like seat.

It was a dash of life or death. The place was Johannesburg, South Africa, and the time the outbreak of the Boer War. If the wagon got through to Durban, it meant safety. But if the Boers ordered "halt," and were to discover the man in hiding, that would write ruin to the story.

Such was the first big scene that Basil Rathbone played, not on the stage or in the movies, but in real life.

The star currently co-starring with Hugh Herbert, Brod Crawford and Bela Lugosi for Universal in "The Black Cat," coming today to the Liberty theater, was just a tiny child in the wagon that eventful night, but it is all still vivid to him. The family knew it had only one slim chance, that was for Mrs. Rathbone to gallop the wagon through the enemy lines in the hope the Boers would never suspect that underneath the seat was Pere Rathbone, an English official with a price on his head.

The escape was narrow, but they made it, and that chapter was the first of many in adventure and color that has filled the star's life.

handsome young 20th Century-Fox discovery, how proud they were of his success in pictures.

They visited the ex-Kansas collegian on the set of "For Beauty's Sake," showing today only at Stand theater, and elected him their escort during a week in the movie city.

North took the girls to the studio for lunch, then introduced them to Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Jane Withers, Don Ameche, Brenda Joyce and other personages on the 20th Century-Fox lot.

Although the coeds didn't know it at the time, Ted came to the studio early, introduced himself to the stars and asked their cooperation to help him be a real "hero" to the girls. In Hollywood only six months, Ted had been working so hard he hadn't gotten time to get acquainted with the stars.

"For Beauty's Sake," which has Ted in the romantic lead, concerns a handsome young woman-hater who inherits a swank beauty shop with a red-hot murder mystery tossed in. Said to be a grand combination of fun, thrills and romance, the picture is Ted's best vehicle to date and he makes the best of his opportunities in it.

They are written by Don Ray.

Nine Boats Make Regatta's Entry Largest in Years

Huskies Even-Money Favorites To Win Four-Mile Varsity Race

By BILL BONI

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 24 (AP)—Washington's Huskies were established tonight as even-money favorites to win the four-mile varsity race in tomorrow's forty-fourth annual intercollegiate regatta.

The Huskies won last year, by half a length over Cornell. With only three holdovers from that boat, they beat California three and a half lengths in record-smashing time on the Oakland (Calif.) estuary in April. Coach Al Ulbrickson doesn't think they're as good now as they were two months ago, but the experts think that still will be good enough to ship the eight other starters without too much effort.

Cornell Leading Threat

The odds listed at Cornell at 2-1, Cornell at 5-1 as leading threat to crack the far western monopoly; Syracuse at 10, Columbia at 15, Princeton and Rutgers at 20, and Massachusetts Tech and Wisconsin at 50-1.

From all indications the new order in the intercollegiate rowing association will get good weather and good rowing conditions for the first time in four years. The forecast for tomorrow was "cloudy and cooler," which should make it ideal.

Cornell is expected to make the best eastern showing in the three-mile junior varsity race against California, Washington and Columbia. The two-mile freshman race that will open the program at 3:45 p. m. (EST) shapes up as a battle among undefeated M. I. T., powerful Wisconsin and Syracuse, a boat load which beat Cornell twice this spring. Columbia, Princeton and Cornell also are entered.

Broadcast Planned

A new four-station short-wave radio hookup will keep all spectators and contestants informed of developments. A new referee, Howard W. Robbins, Boston attorney, will officiate.

The observation train will be the smallest in years, with only ten cars compared to the thirty-six and 40 of the boom years. But the entry of nine starters for the varsity race, is the largest since 1929-30-31, with Rutgers making its debut.

Tigers Win Close Battle from A's

Singles by York and Campbell and Long Fly Decide 2-1 Clash

PHILADELPHIA, June 24 (AP)—Singles by Rudy York and Bruce Campbell, followed by Pinky Higgins' long fly that scored York, gave Detroit a run in the ninth inning tonight and a 2 to 1 victory over the Athletics. The A's had tied the score in the eighth on Wally Moses' single and a three-bagger by Bob Johnson.

Johnny Gorsica, who started for the Tigers, was continually in trouble, especially in the third, fourth and fifth when the A's put two men on base, but he was tight in the pinches.

In addition the Detroit twirler drove in the first run of the game in the third inning. Charley Gehring led off with a double, went to third on an infield out and home on Gorsica's single to center. Thereafter Gorsica and Les McCrabb, who went the route for the A's, hooked up in a pitching duel. In the eighth Wally Moses led off for the A's with his fourth straight hit, advanced on Benny McCoy's sacrifice and romped home on Johnson's triple to deep center. Johnson was left stranded as Dick Siebert and Eddie Collins were easy outs.

In the ninth York singled and reached second on Moses' error. Campbell singled him to third and he scored on Higgins' fly. The box score:

COLLEGE STAR WHO SIGNED WITH TIGERS FOR $45,000

Dick Wakefield, Mrs. Wakefield and Walter O. Briggs

Highest bonus ever paid to a college baseball player to sign a contract with a professional team, a reported $45,000, goes to Dick Wakefield, soph outfielder with the University of Michigan this past spring, who has signed with the Detroit Tigers. Wakefield, 20 years old, is a left-handed batter who hit .382 for Michigan in twelve Big Ten games. He is the son of Howard Wakefield, one-time big league baseball player. Mrs. Wakefield signed the contract for Dick because he is under age. Owner Walter O. Briggs of the Detroit Tigers is at right.

Lou Novikoff Sent To Minors by Cubs

Bruins Option Publicized Rookie Slugger to Milwaukee Club

CHICAGO, June 24 (AP)—The sad Russian has gone away—but a lot of Chicago Cubs' fans hope he'll be back another day.

Lou Novikoff, who came to the Cubs last spring as the most highly publicized rookie in National League history, was back in the minors tonight as a member of the Milwaukee Brewers. He failed to meet major league standards so was sent to the American Association club for more seasoning. His new boss will be genial Charlie Grimm, who still believes Lou some day will develop into a great hitter.

"I'm going to give Lou the microphone in Milwaukee and let him rip," said Charlie in discussing the strategy by which he, as the Brewers' new manager, hopes to get Novikoff back into the happy mood which had him singing into loud speakers and clouting prodigious home runs last season in the Pacific Coast League.

"He's been trying too hard," Grimm said. "I think he still will develop."

The likable Novikoff made a lot of friends at Wrigley Field despite his 237 batting average. When he failed repeatedly at the plate, the attitude of most Cub fans was "he's

Brooklyn Dodgers Stage Batting Fest To Blank Buccaneers, 8 to 0

PITTSBURGH, June 24 (AP)—With Curt Davis hurling five hit ball, the Brooklyn Dodgers staged a batting fest at the expense of an assortment of four Pittsburgh pitchers today to take their second straight victory over the Bucs 8 to 0. Doll Camilli's first inning triple with two mates on base clinched the game. He and Ducky Medwick each drove in three runs.

Manager Frankie Frisch's effort to shake up his team by benching Jepp Handley and Maurice Van Robays and hauling out Stu Martin and Debs Garms failed to show any effect.

Billy Herman, returning to the lineup for the Dodgers after a few days, blasted out doubles for two trips to bat. Medwick got four blows, one a two-base clout.

The aggressive visitors upset Rookie Hurier Aldon Wilkie in the fifth. With two out, Hal Reiser stole third base and then scored as the pitcher committed a balk, which pressing; let's give him a chance." In the Coast League last season he batted .363, knocked forty-one homers and batted in 171 runs, leading the circuit in those departments in addition to runs scored, total hits and total bases. The fanfare over him last winter was terrific. Cub officials didn't help him any by publicly admitting he'd have to whale the cover off the ball to overcome his fielding deficiencies.

West Is Favored To Defeat East At Poughkeepsie

Washington and California Win Regatta Nine Times out of Ten

By JOHN LARDNER

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 24.—The crowds on the city, on the bridges, and on the observation train which chugs back and forth along the west bank of the Hudson river will enjoy two new privileges of democracy at the Poughkeepsie regatta tomorrow, to wit:

1. The races will not be run at night.
2. Somebody will tell them who wins.

This is America's greatest rowing race, and up till now the promoters have considered it best for the public to know nothing whatever about it. Therefore, they kept the results a strict secret, even from people who paid to watch.

Secret Will Be Out

That was not enough. Last year, to make absolutely certain that no foreign agent or Peeping Tom should know what was going on out there on the river, they ran the varsity at nightfall and the junior varsity race approximately at midnight.

The varsity race ended in darkness, with no treacherous moon to betray the boys' secret. There was a theory among us baffled experts on the train that Washington had won, largely because Washington was supposed to win. Then a careless official on the river lit a cigarette, and by the flare of his match we could see, sure enough, that Washington was sneaking guilty across the finish line in first place. He had em red-handed.

No such mistake was made in the Jayvee race. They waited until all the people had gone home to run this one. The result was unknown to the crews themselves, though the coxswain in the Cornell boat reported that he thought he saw another vessel slipping across the line just ahead of him. This later turned out to be the Albany night boat, which was unanimously voted the winner next day.

This year the regatta has been taken gently but firmly out of the hands of the previous owners and entrusted to Asa S. Bushnell, a talkative official who tells everything he knows. So anxious is Mr. Bushnell to blab, or peach, to the spectators that he has arranged for the details, fractional times, and results to be broadcast to shore by short wave radio. Also, the races will be rowed by daylight, come hell or high water.

If the customers recover from the shock of this procedure, the regatta may yet come to be a pretty good show, and a popular one.

The West's Meat

Of course, there are more things wrong at Poughkeepsie, from the public's point of view, than the business of rowing at night. That can be and has been corrected. But what about Washington's vicious habit of winning, and California's vicious habit of doing the same when Washington doesn't? Who can correct that?

The far western crews have taken much of the joy out of life for the eastern crowds at Poughkeepsie. The only eastern crews which have won in the last twelve years are Cornell and Navy, and their winning has been extremely limited. When the west sends crews, those crews conquer, nine times out of ten.

This, naturally, is a source of great enjoyment to rowing bugs on the coast, but it creates no little apathy among the eastern bugs. I don't know just what can be done about it, short of attaching a fair-sized anchor apiece to the Washington and California shells by way of handicap. Or blindfolding the coxswains.

If no such measures are taken this year, it looks like another Washington-California day on the Hudson, with the emphasis on Washington. The Huskies lambasted California on the Oakland estuary earlier in the season, and California has come along just enough since then to make it look like a two-boat race.

Cornell may be tough, but Princeton, if the water runs strongly downstream, seems to your correspondent to be the likeliest of the eastern navies. The Tigers row with style and harmony. Give them a fast track won't tax their staying powers too much and they have a chance to finish with the leaders.

If they do—and this is the beauty of the 1941 races—you'll know it. The word will get out. I know it's going to embarrass the boys to have their little secrets—such as who won, etc.—laid bare in this the first non-confidential regatta ever run at Poughkeepsie, but justice demands that the mystery be cleared up—North American Newspaper Alliance.

Food 'Hoarding' Rapped by Keech In Radio Talk

Don't Buy Unnecessary Quantities, Chamber Speaker Urges Public

Declaring that advances in living costs "have been held to a very reasonable figure" through the co-operative effort of manufacturers and distributors, Thomas L. Keech, assistant secretary of the Liberty Trust, Company, last night urged the public not to "hoard" foodstuffs and thereby shoot prices up.

"You, as customers, can help maintain a normal price level if you refrain from the purchase of unnecessary quantities of food items," Keech declared in the weekly broadcast of the chamber of commerce over WTBO. "Your interest will be protected if you will help the retail merchant to help you."

Government Figures Used
It is opportune to consider just what the facts are in view of the fact that there has been so much comment on increases in the cost of living, the speaker said, noting that the figures used in the talk are taken from data published by the United States Department of Commerce. "While these figures are not based on Cumberland, they do, we believe, reflect our experience in Cumberland," he added.

"Increases in the prices of many kinds of goods and of some services caused living costs in large cities of the country to rise five tenths of one percent between December 15, 1940, and March 15, 1941," Keech reported. "As a result of these advances, living costs of moderate income families in March were 2.6 per cent higher than in August 1939, the month before war broke out in Europe."

"Prices to consumers generally are beginning to show the effects of the broad increases which have occurred in wholesale markets since last summer, particularly for foods, textiles and all kinds of house furnishings. Prices for many of the clothing items reached low levels during January and February clearance sales, but by March had risen sharply to levels higher than those reported before the sales began. Cost of food, which have been advancing since November, continued to move higher. Rents are higher than last December in almost all large cities, and there are reports of further rises on April 1, the moving date in a number of cities."

Cost of Living To Advance
"In view of recent increases in wholesale prices of clothing and house furnishings intended for fall delivery and probable increases in food prices and in rents, it is anticipated that the cost-of-living index will advance as much as three per cent between March and early autumn."

"The cost of food — the largest single item in the budgets of wage earners and clerical workers — averaged 1.4 per cent higher in mid-March than on the fifteenth of last December. There were advances in (Continued on Page 10, Col. 5)

Allegany County WPA Rolls May Be Reduced Soon

Road and Street Projects Probably Will Be Closed Down

The probability that all WPA road and street projects in Allegany county will be closed down by drastic slashing of WPA rolls effective June 30 was reliably reported here yesterday.

William H. Rice, county superintendent of WPA projects, could not be reached for comment, but authoritative sources indicated that because of curtailment in funds, perhaps 500 workers will be cut from the rolls. More than 300 of these are employed on county road projects, it was said.

The expected slash probably will not affect the airport project or the Savage River dam. It was said, since these are considered important to the defense program. In effect, these will be the only projects operating on any scale.

In addition to halting the road projects, the cut will also reduce the recreational program and sewing projects to a minimum enrollment, according to well-informed sources.

There are about a half-dozen road projects underway in the county at the present time, with an equal number of projects suspended because of the transfer of workers to the airport and dam. Street projects in Cumberland and other communities are also suspended for this reason.

Damage Suit Filed For Three Children Of B&O Fireman

Father Was Killed in Three-way Collision New Year's Day

A $50,000 damage suit was docketed in circuit court yesterday against the Baltimore and Ohio railroad on behalf of the children of Edward McLaughlin, B&O fireman who was killed in a three-way collision in the freight yards near the Winow street subway New Year's day.

The suit, filed by Edward J. Ryan, attorney, was brought in the name of the State of Maryland for the use of Elizabeth, Roth and Mary McLaughlin, children of the accident victim.

Negligence and carelessness are charged in the declaration, which serves notice on the railroad that a trial by jury is sought.

McLaughlin, 54, of Bedford, Pa., was fireman on a backing freight with which two passenger trains collided. The engineer of the lead passenger engine was also killed and the freight engineer died several days later.

Failure to properly issue a yard order was blamed by the Interstate Commerce Commission for the collision.

Insurance Men Elect Officers

Fred L. Schultz Named President of Life Underwriters

Fred L. Schultz was elected president of Cumberland Life Underwriters Association last night at the organization's monthly dinner meeting at Central Y. M. C.

Other officers named were Paul Gilme, first vice president; S. D. Drueck, second vice president; R. O. Collins, third vice president; G. M. Garrett, fourth vice president; S. W. Kremer, secretary, and Harry G. Stein, treasurer.

Those named to the executive committee are W. A. Ryland, chairman; John Park, Albert H. May, M. J. Shaffer, Thomas F. Conlon, and L. M. Robertson.

Preceding the election of officers, A. L. Rogers, conductor of the Dale Carnegie public speaking classes here, gave an address on "Public Speaking as Related to Selling Insurance."

Last night's dinner meeting will be the last until September. The above officers will serve until June 30, 1942, when new officers will be elected.

City Loses Case Against Beerman In Circuit Court

Huster Rules that Scrap Metals and Rubber Are By-Products

The mayor and city council lost out yesterday in their effort to force Michael Beerman to purchase a $50 junk dealer's license instead of a $15 second-hand dealer's license.

Associate Judge William A. Huster ruled in circuit court that Beerman is "at present engaged in the business of buying and selling second-hand autos and goods and is not engaged in the business of buying and selling scrap metals and rubber."

His dealings in scrap metals and rubber, the jurist held, are only incidental to, or a by-product of, his principal occupation.

Under the city's ordinance license, Beerman needs only a second-hand dealer's license and "shall not be required at this time to take out any other," Judge Huster said.

The opinion was handed down in Beerman's mandamus suit against the mayor and city council, the city clerk and the chief of police, which was docketed September 3 by Clarence Lippl, attorney.

Scrap Iron Is Incidental
In the suit, Beerman said he had been engaged in buying second-hand automobiles for twelve years, re-selling some, dismantling others and selling their parts. Certain unsalable parts, comprising a comparatively small amount of his total business, were sold as scrap iron, he added.

In 1936, the suit went on, he was advised he must buy a license for buying and selling of scrap metals and rubber, but when he protested, the then city attorney ruled only a license for the buying and selling of second-hand goods was needed. The character of his business had not changed since then, Beerman stated, but last year, the same proposition arose, with the city clerk refusing to issue a $15 second-hand dealer's license and demanding that he take a $50 junk dealer's license.

At the same time, he was threatened with arrest unless he took the $50 license, according to the suit, which called the city's action "arbitrary" and tending to confiscate his business without due process of law. It asked a writ of mandamus to compel the city to issue the $15 license and a restraining order to prevent his arrest pending determination of the case. The city was ordered to show cause why the writ should not be issued, and a temporary restraining order was granted.

A week later, City Attorney Charles S. Heskett filed a demurrer to the suit and also moved for the dissolution of the restraining order.

Yesterday, Judge Huster overruled the demurrer, denied the motion for dismissal of the restraining order and specifically ruled that Beerman is required to purchase only the $15 license.

Cumberland Man Finds Police Can Not Be Given the Run-Around

Pays $11.45 Fine after Nearly Two Weeks of Dodging

A young Cumberland man who apparently thought he could give state police and a Frostburg magistrate the run-around found out differently last night—the hard way.

According to city police, the young man, who lives on Grand avenue, was fined $11.45 nearly two weeks ago in Frostburg for violating a state motor law. He was unable to pay the fine at the time and was released on his own recognizance after he promised to return later in the day and pay-up.

But he never showed up—except to make a dozen or more excuses and promises.

So last night state police became irritated over the matter and asked city police to pick him up. Shortly afterwards the young man was marched into headquarters where the situation was explained to him by Desk Sgt. W. B. Lovenstein.

Thirty-two Miles Of Roads Added To County System

State Roads Commission Will Maintain Added Mileage

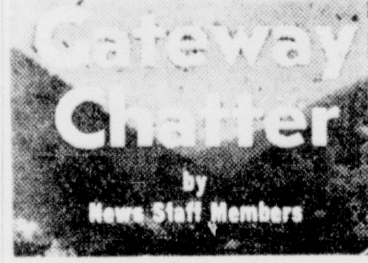

Formal incorporation of thirty-two and one-half miles of public roads and streets into the county highway system was ordered yesterday morning by the board of county commissioners at its semi-weekly meeting.

Chief advantage of the move, according to County Engineer John H. Carscaden, is that it permits the county commissioners to have State Roads Commission forces work on the roads. Although the roads involved are actually public roads, the State Roads Commission will not work them unless they are part of the county network.

Change Is Authorized
Under a special county law, the commissioners authorized the step in a formal resolution which is to be published in the News and Times.

Noting that certain streets and roads "have been in use by the public for a period of more than twenty years" and that "the public convenience and necessity require" that they shall become incorporated in the county system, the resolution provides that "they are hereby declared to be public highways of Allegany county and . . . shall be maintained as public highways under the authority and control of the county commissioners."

The streets and roads thus absorbed include:
Town Hill road, 6.51 miles, Merten's avenue to Green Ridge road; Ford road, 0.26 miles, Oldtown to Potomac river; Green Ridge road, (Continued on Page 10, Col. 3)

More than 1200 persons in Maryland have been injured in connection with Fourth of July accidents from fireworks the last four years, according to records of surveys made year by year by the Maryland Society for the Prevention of Blindness and filed with the state department of health.

In 1937, 295 persons injured; 304 in 1938; 307 in 1939; 303 in 1940. A total of 1,209. There were four deaths among those injured—two little girls, one five, the other eight years old, died of burns caused when sparklers set fire to their dresses; one boy of twelve, died from injuries caused by the explosion of a home made cannon put together out of lead pipe and powder from firecrackers, and the fourth, an adult, died when an aerial bomb went off prematurely, fracturing his skull.

Citing this large total of accidents and the four deaths as examples of the Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the state department of health, advised those who feel that Independence day celebrations are incomplete without fireworks, to limit their indulgence in such explosives to adequately safeguarded community displays.

Emphasizing the importance of protecting children against the danger involved in the indiscriminate handling of fireworks, Dr. Riley said that the state records show that approximately two out of every three of those who have been injured in Maryland in the past four years have been youngsters under fifteen—792 of the total of 1,209. This group included, he said, one baby under a year old, forty-five from 1 to 5 years old, 316 from 6 to 10, and 433 from 11 to 15. The red ranger in age from 16 to 70 and over.

"Firecrackers—big and little—were responsible," Dr. Riley continued "for the injuries to the greatest number. Nearly a thousand persons—963—were injured in accidents or explosions from this source; 138 in accidents caused by miscellaneous types of fireworks; thirty-five by torpedoes; thirty-one by skyrockets, twenty-seven by Roman candles and fifteen by sparklers. There were probably many other, similar, accidents that were not reported."

Conlin Announces Meeting of Division Leaders for Today

In the first report of the Allegany County United Service Organizations campaigning, $1,220.25 had been received late last night, according to Thomas F. Conlin, chairman for the county drive.

However, Conlin pointed out, this figure does not include any of the county chairmen, or more than a quarter of the teams working in the city.

Meeting Is Called
A meeting of all the men's division leaders and team captains has been called for today at 1:30 p. m., in the headquarters, 12 North Centre street. Conlin urges all workers to attend.

Mrs. Helen MacMillan's team, of Miss Elizabeth Dixon's division, has made the best showing to date, Mrs. Flook said.

In the men's section, which is soliciting the business area, very few team reports have been made. David Kauffman, a captain in James Alfred Alvire's division, has reported the largest amount for the men's teams.
